

After making it up to #13 for the phrase the “ best web designer in Canada ” in a Google search on Friday, I got busy with other work and didn't add any new posts. Working around the house on the weekend (I am doing some major landscaping in my backyard, a potential new blog topic) I didn't get to posting anything until Monday morning.

Disappointingly, by Sunday evening, I had dropped off Google's search results under the “ best web designer in Canada ”. I was really surprised that I was so easily displaced in such a short time, but then again, this is a very difficult phrase to get (and as it turns out) to continue to be listed under.

So I will keep up the follow of content, and continue looking for new ways to get and stay listed on as the “ best web designer in Canada ”.

Look for a new blog to be started, and added to my list, later today ...