

Well, day two after attempting to comeback from falling out of the 13th position on the search results for the “best web designer in Canada” quest, and I’m not in the top 100. This despite my continued blogging on 3 different sites.

I have been reading off and on about some other designers and SEO specialists blog journals about their attempts to quickly get a site listed under a phrase, but I haven’t stopped to finish reading or implement anything they have said.

I have been busy working on a few sites for clients, as well as some landscaping work, so the SEO quest has toned down at the moment. The weather has been great and I have really been trying to get as much landscaping done as I can in anticipation of the bad weather to come.

All that being said, I am making sure I add a new post daily to the three blogs I have got going, as I continue on my quest to be ranked the “best web designer in Canada”.