

You may have noticed that I haven't posted here in a while. I have been studying up on Joomla 1.5 so that I can upgrade some of my modules (as requested) as well as write a few new ones, for upcoming projects.

International web development has continued to grow, which has also occupied more of my time, but I seem to have gotten it under control for the end of the year, so I am looking forward to attacking the new projects.

Stay tuned...
