

My quest to rank #1 under the search phrase the “ best web designer in Canada ” continues. Today I will continue my discussion of why I think that the Joomla CMS is the best platform upon which to build your website on.

User management. Website users are grouped into visitors or registered users. The Joomla CMS includes a complete user registration function, that collects and stores registration information, manages user names and passwords, including lost password functions. Registered users can further be divided into basic registered or administrative users. Administrative users may create content and add links to the site, either moderated or not depending on their administrative level. Finally Joomla includes the user “front-end” and an administrative “back-end” From within the back-end, super administrators can completely manage the site, including menus, content, users, links and content placement page by page.

This is one other reason I think Joomla is the best CMS to base a website on, and should be ranked first under the search phrase the best web designer in Canada for understanding the Joomla CMS the way I do. Tomorrow I will touch on extending what Joomla can do.
